

SELECTED.
CANZONET.
Tis sweet, when in the glowing west, The sun's bright wheels their course are leaving Upon the ocean's azure breast,
To watch the dark wave slowly heaving.
And oh! at glimpse of early morn, While holy monks their beads are telling, Tis sweet to hear the hunter's horn From glen to mountain widely swelling.
And it is sweet at mid-day hour, Between the forest oak reclining,
To hear the driving tempest pour, Each sense to fairy dreams resigning.
Tis sweet, where nodding rocks around The night shade dark, is wildly wreath-ing,
To listen to some solemn sound,
From harp to lyre divinely breathing.
And sweeter yet the genuine glow,
Of youthful friendship's high devotion, Responsive to the voice of woe, When heaves the heart with strong emotion.

And youth is sweet with many a joy,
That frolic by in artless measure;
And age is sweet, with less alloy, In tranquil thought and silent pleasure.
For He who gave the like we share, With every charm his gift adorning, Bade ere hear the dew drops wear,
And dress in smiles the blush of morning.

From the Albany Gazette.
Mr. PAISTER.
If you think the following short report of a law case, determined in the early administration of justice, under "the act for the settlement of the courts of justice," passed 1st November, 1808, taken verbatim from the minutes of the court, will light up a smile in the pale face of any of the profession, in this day of their adversity, I need not address an argument to your benevolence to give it an immediate insertion.

Hons Von Knippenberg, Stoffe Freehouse.
Parties called.
Hons Von Knippenberg—Here I pe.
Stoffe Freehouse—Here, here.
Justice.—Well, Hons, the kort is now open.—For why you call me here—what you kot against Stoffe?
Hons.—Well, sir, if your honor please, to tan mshel has kill my tog—and a capital tog he was, sir.
Justice.—Well, Hons, what you want for to tog?
Hons.—The tog, to be sure, wasent wort a tan cent; mair, howmover, as he kill him as he did, I mean to kit all what I can —I will have the full vally of him.
Justice.—Well, Stoffe, you hear what Hons says—how you kill histog—what you kot to say to dat?
Stoffe.—To be sure I did kill the tan little dog—put, py my blixin, he can't proviert; and since he has sate me as he did, I wont pay never a copper—not by my zeel.
Justice.—My judgment is, dat Hons shall pay de cost of de writ, and Stoffe shall pay de cost of his judgment.—So, boys, you may go home.

Doctor Graham being on a stage in a country town, in order to promote the sale of his medicines, told the country people that "he had come here for the good of the people, and not for wealth." Then, speaking to his merry Andrew, said he, "do we come here for want, Andrew?" "No leithzur," (says Andrew) we have enough of that at home, besides (continued he) my master has a very large estate,—but that's neither here nor there."

A gentleman who had been desired by his wife to make a purchase for her at a milliner's, being requested by a friend on his return to call in, begged to be excused from stopping, as he had bought a bonnet for his wife, and was afraid the fashion would alter before he got home.

A person having been recommended to plant on his estate, because it would be for the benefit of posterity, replied, that if he could find posterity had done any thing for him, he would do that for posterity; but until then, he would not take the trouble.

A gentleman in company with Foote, at the Smyrna coffee-house, took up a newspaper, saying, I want to see what the ministry are about. Foote, with a smile, replied, Look among the robberies.

Uncertainty is the characteristic of all worldly pursuits.

I have little to say to you of yesterday's proceedings—and yet out of them something may hereafter rise to amuse your readers with events and speculations of importance. In compliance with the requisition of the house of representatives, the president sent a letter received by him from the secretary of state, accompanied by a vast mass of correspondence and documents which passed between the latter and the American minister at Madrid, and others on other occasions, respecting the relations of this country with Spain. Of a letter from Mr. Adams to Mr. Erwin, our minister at Madrid, enough has transpired to induce us to believe that even from Mr. A-dams's pen no diplomatic production has yet appeared to surpass it in every requisite of argument, eloquence and truth.
Time will tell.

Out of eight resolutions offered to the house, I see but one of such interesting importance as to warrant my particularizing it. It was offered by Mr. Tallmadge, and goes to provide by law for the president's appointment, with the consent of the senate, of the clerks of the several district courts of the United States, and requiring from such clerks better security for the performance of their duties.

MUSEUM OF WAX FIGURES.

We are much pleased to learn that the proprietors of this museum have had no reason to regret the exhibition of their curiosities in this town from a want of patronage. On the contrary, the reception they have met with has been such as to excite their unfeigned gratitude. We admire this liberality in our citizens—for, while it evinces a disposition for novelty, it shows a chaste discrimination in the selection of their amusements. But a few days since, a juggler, announced an exhibition under the imposing appellation of Mathematical and Philosophical Experiments! The veil, however, was too flimsy to conceal the deception, and he met a reward justly proportioned to his deserts. Messrs. Stowell & Bradley, the proprietors of the museum, have enlisted no fictitious aids to excite admiration; they have had recourse to no pompous panegyric to adorn their collection; nor have they entered into a wordy war to excite the sympathies of strangers.— Their expectations rest upon the intrinsic merit of their collection—their claims, upon the superiority of that collection over all others. The superficial observer admires its splendor, and the connoisseur is struck with the symmetry of proportion and harmony of arrangement. The dresses display the skill of the artist combined with the accuracy of the historian; and we are at a loss which most to admire, the magical effect of the whole group, or the minute exactness of individual representation.

Merit where merit is due.

The following extract from a pamphlet lately published, on the present state of banking operations "by a Virginian," is entirely in accord with our own sentiments.
[National Messenger.] Certainly it is inconsistent with every idea of propriety, that a position other than the metropolis of the nation should have been selected for the mint. The coining of money being universally regarded as one of the highest acts of sovereignty, unquestionably this establishment ought to be at the metropolis, under the immediate control and inspection of the national government. So also at the seat of the national government ought to have been the bank of the United States, under the like inspection and control. In fact, where the executive powers reside, where the legislative assemblies, where the supreme court holds its sessions, where all the great business of the nation is transacted, and especially where the officer at the head of the treasury performs his duties—there also ought to be the great minted machine of the nation.

VERMONT.

An act, has passed relating to poor debtors, which allows them to hold exempt from execution, "ten sheep, and one year's product of said sheep, either of wool, yarn, or cloth—the best swine, and the meat of said swine, and one cow, with sufficient forage for both sheep and cow." By another law, pensioners are allowed to take the poor man's oath, the same as if they had nothing due.

SLANDER.

A case of slander was lately tried at Rea-land, Vermont. Josiah Hooker, and wife, vs. Henry Bigelow. Verdict for the plaintiffs, $150, and recovery of costs. The high standing of the defendant, (says the Rutland Herald) who is pastor of a very respectable church in Middletown, and the interesting appearance of the prosecutor, who had formerly been a member of his church, and who now appeared to a court of justice in defence of her reputation, which had been violently assailed, excited an unusual degree of interest in the minds of a crowded audience.

A TRULY LAMENTABLE CASE.
There is in the city of Hartford, in Connecticut, a little girl who is deaf, dumb and blind. "And yet," says the letter which gives this information, "I believe they will continue to teach her, for she can smell." Two gentlemen had the curiosity to call and see her; both gentlemen had gold watches very nearly resembling each other.
She took them, and after smelling to them, returned to each his own; and by no maneuvring or changing, could she be made to commit an error. What aggravates the salamity, is that her parents are poor.

TRY FOD.

A hog raised by Luther Brownell, of Beckman, and but 17 months old, was sold last week to John S. Great, merchant, of this village, and weighed 692 pounds.
[Poughkeepsie Courier.]

We have been favored with the perusal of an original letter, from a Choctaw Indian, and one of influence in his nation; which, if we had room, would be worth publishing entire. It is genuinely aboriginal. This letter, the sentiments of which would do honor to the white brethren of the writer, satifies us of the great improvement making among those Indians, where the attempts to civilize them have been consistent and rational, and of the importance of a perseverance in these attempts, to which a few exceptions ought to be no discouragement.

NATIONAL INTELLIGENCER.

By the report of the quartermaster of the regiment, it appears that the 6th Infantry, commanded by col. Atkinson, and stationed on the Champlain frontier, have performed, since the first of April last, 35,716 days labor, exclusive of their military duty, the cultivation of a kitchen garden, which will supply the regiment with vegetables until the next season.

OF THE YELLOW STONE EXPEDITION.

Extract of a letter dated Martin Chnton-est, 380 miles up the Missouri river, 2d Nov. 1818, from an officer of the Yellow Stone River expedition to a gentleman in St. Louis.

"After a very fatiguing and arduous march of nearly 60 days, we arrived at this place a few days ago, and took up our winter quarters on an island called "Isle de Vaches" or Cow Island; and immediately commenced building our fort, which is progressing rapidly; I think it the best situation we could find between the river and the mouth of the river.

"We have passed through a country which is not surpassed in fertility of soil and water courses by any in the world. Our boats have been propelled thus far, (excepting a little intermediate sailing) by the Current, and the numerous sand-bars, sawyers, planters and ripples, we were not enabled to make more than nine miles per day on an average. It is a source of much astonishment to me, that we have not met with some serious accident; but on the contrary, we have experienced none of any importance. Our force consists of about 347 men, including officers.
Col. Chambers having been ordered to take command of the 9th military department, this command devolved on Captain Martin, who I think well qualified to conduct an expedition of this kind. As soon as the ice breaks in the spring, it is expected we will again resume our slow and arduous march for our destination, the mouth of Yellow Stone River. It is however, my opinion, we will not reach it with our present force and the unfavorable prospects attending it. At least one third of the men's terms of enlistment will expire before the march can possibly be performed; and the remainder are of such a description as will never answer the purpose. I expect in the spring, when the grass has obtained a height sufficient for their protection, the Indians will begin to ask us where we are going, and our business, for you may rest assured, they will never fold their arms, and tamely submit to our sending an armed force at a point so far in the heart of their country, when they are backed and constantly urged on by the British fur companies, on the Assyaboin and Red rivers. We apprehend more danger from the Sioux and Ricarrees than any other nation. My opinions on this subject may be groundless—time alone will determine the fact."

FROM THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, DEC. 18.

Died, at his residence, near the town of Neville, in the state of Ohio, Gen. PRES-LEY NEVILLE, in the 83d year of his age.
Death has laid his icy hand on one more veteran of the revolution; but although among his victims there have been some whose names were more familiar to the voice of fame, a better or a braver man had not yet fallen, than the object of this notice.
General Neville was a native of Virginia.
After graduating at the university of Philadelphia with distinguished reputation for classical attainments, he entered the army in the year 1775, at the age of nineteen, as an ensign in a company commanded by his father, the late general John Neville.
He quickly rose to the rank of captain, and as such, became aid-de-camp to the marquis de la Fayette, in which capacity he served several campaigns. Similarity of feeling and of manners, created an instant friendship between these accomplished men, and at the same time young officers, which has continued uninterrupted ever since, and which retained major Neville in the family of the marquis for three years. At the expiration of that period he volunteered, with his father, to join the southern army, and received the brevet of lieutenant colonel.

He was made prisoner at the surrender of Charleston, returned thence to Virginia on parole, and was not exchanged until the end of the war.

General Neville was in the battles of Princeton, Trenton, Germantown, Brandywine and Monmouth, at the last of which he had a horse killed under him. At the close of the revolution he married the eldest daughter of general Daniel Morgan, and emigrated to a property which he held near Pittsburgh, at that time in Virginia. In 1792 he removed to Pittsburgh, where he continued until the year 1816. He then changed his residence to Ohio. He was always honored with the friendship of general Washington, and, until within a few years, he held many of the most important offices, under the general and state governments. Governor Snyder was the first to inflict a wound on the peace and the pride of this distinguished citizen and viciorious soldier, in the evening of his days, by removing him from the lucrative office of prothonotary of his county;—we impeach not his motive, but we hope that it was such as to justify him at a future day.

It falls to the lot of but few men, to enjoy so great a degree of personal popularity, as has attended the subject of this notice through a life of many years and much vicissitude. Until he had passed the meridian of life, he was favored by providence with the possession of an ample fortune, which enabled him to indulge to excess a benevolence as warm and as expansive as has ever flowed in a mortal breast. If he had a fault, it was that it was too lavish for prudence, and too indiscriminate for justice; but it was the offspring of a heart too truly kind to allow prudential maxims to mingle in its counsels, and too honorable to doubt the rectitude of its ardent impulses. Like most generous men he suffered dearly for his liberality, but he repented not at the dispensations of Providence, nor repented of those acts which he performed with pleasure and reflected on with pride. He was admired by his equals, respected by his inferiors, and loved by all who knew him; the oppressed clung to him for support, and the prayers of the needy ascended to Heaven in his favor.

In General Neville, we had a brilliant example of the character, which we may emphatically term that of a well bred gentleman. The distinguishing features of his character were a courteous hospitality, and a polished urbanity of manners. He carried into private life that nice sense of honor which so peculiarly belongs to the soldier, and which, though the native growth of his own bosom, was polished and refined in the camp. His affections were warm, and his philanthropy pervaded the whole tenor of his thoughts and actions. As a husband he was delicate and affectionate; as a father warm and indulgent, and as a man mild but firm. The rule of his conduct towards society was to do nothing which a gentleman should be ashamed of, and he cared but little what name the world might put upon his actions, if he gained the approbation of his own heart without trespassing upon the feelings of others.— Yet so nice was his sense of the delicacy which ought to be observed towards the opinion of the world, as well as the feelings of individuals, that it would have given him serious pain to reflect for a moment that he had offended against the one or the other to the most minute particular. He breathed his last on the banks of the Ohio, not surrounded by all the comforts of life, for this would have been too great an happiness for an old soldier—but he drew his last sigh surrounded by his children, on the soil that was granted to him for his revolutionary services. At the present day the remembrance of those services are but of little value, except as a theme of pride to his descendants, but the future historian will rank him among those heroes to whom his country owes her independence. He has left a widow and large family to mourn his loss.

FOREIGN ARTICLES.

FROM ENGLISH PAPERS RECEIVED AT BOSTON.

The papers furnish no political news of any great moment, excepting the full ratification of the Treaty for the evacuation of the allied army from France; and the dispersal of the troops, to their several homes.
A large portion of the British army had reached England. The Sovereigns, and high military commanders were assembling at Paris, for the purpose of taking an affectionate, and it is hoped, a long farewell, of the illustrious House of Bourbon. A few general extracts are made from the latest dates:—
The ratification by the French government of the Treaty of the Sovereigns of Europe, for evacuating the French territory, was received at Aix-la-Chapelle, on the 17th of Oct.

The Emperor of Russia and King of Prussia, were at Valenciennes on the 21st Oct.
Lord Wellington, was the next day to give a splendid fete to the Sovereigns, and on the following day, a grand review of the troops; when immediately after the evacuation was to follow. The route of all the troops has been traced.

The Emperor of Russia, King of Prussia, together with many illustrious personages of civil and military distinction, were expected at Paris on the 28th Oct.

The Bank of England had not resumed specie payments; but it was said, they were preparing for that measure, and would commence with the issue of silver.

On the 30th Oct. fifty sail of vessels arrived at Dover, from Calais, having on board a large body of British troops, of the late army of observation in France. After landing the men, the vessels immediately returned to Calais.

The Queen of England still lingers on the bed of sickness; and suffers great pain and restlessness.

Sir Humphrey Davy has been raised to the dignity of Baronet.
Died at Paris, M. Bertrand de Mollerville Minister of Marine under Louis XVI. aged 75 years.

FROM THE LONDON OBSERVER OF OCT. 25.

DIFFERENCES WITH AMERICA ADJUSTED.

The matter, not in dispute exactly, but in uncertainty, and which were left for arrangement between this country and America, at the conclusion of the late war, are said to have been, the greater number of them, happily settled by the commissioners appointed for that purpose on our part, and Mr. Gallatin on the other, before that gentleman quitted England. The boundary, which was left unsettled in the treaty at the end of the revolutionary war, is now accurately fixed. This if true, is a great point. The right of fishing, and drying fish, on the coast of Newfoundland, is clearly defined; and the terms of intercourse between our West India Islands, and the vessels of the United States are specified and agreed on. These also are matters of considerable weight; but the greatest difficulty remains behind, and it is probable for this reason, that it is the greatest, that it so remains:—the right of visitation, and the power of apprehending the seamen of each country, when found on board the ships of the other, is unsettled.

of fifty acres adjoining the same tract of 300 acres, lying and being in the county of Frederick and state of Virginia, situate on the stable, &c. &c.

This land, I am told, has for the last seven years been highly improved with clomate and fertility of soil. Terms of sale the marshal of the said district, or his de-

Notification.

WHEREAS John Thomas Ricketts stated in the Franklin Bank, this day, that I was concerned in trade, or in business, with Mr. Charles Tyler, with the obvious view of injuring my character from the cloud that at present dwells over Mr.
Tyler, who has long been my intimate acquaintance—I hereby declare the statement made by Mr. Ricketts to be false.—And further, as he the said Ricketts did also state in the Franklin Bank, in the presence of the teller, that Charles Tyler drew a bill on Alexander Henderson for seventy dollars, in favor of R. S. Blacklock, which was refused, and afterwards paid—I moreover declare that that assertion is also false, as to the payment of said draft. From these misrepresentations of Mr. Ricketts, (which is using too mild a term) I feel forced, contrary to my habits or inclination, to make public that the said Charles Tyler's note, to a certain amount, being in the hands of Henderson & Fitzhugh under protest; I am one of his creditors, although I have not blotted the circumstance about the streets, knowing enough of mankind to be aware of the truth of one of Rochefoucault's maxims, that "in the adversity of our best friends we always find something that doth not displease us."

The unprovoked assault of Mr. Ricketts on my partner, Mr. Fitzhugh, in the Franklin Bank, will be left, it is to be presumed, to the decision of a jury.

ALEXANDER HENDERSON.
December 28.

Mr. Snowden:

Will you be so obliging to insert the following twice or thrice in your Gazette, in reply to the notification of the honorable Alexander Henderson, Esquire.
It is not common with me to name or talk of such well known characters, except when at a loss for words, and his name accidentally introduced by others with a species of encomium on his conduct and work.
That gentleman is too well known to suffer in character, even had the charges have been made by me which he alleges—and I am not disposed to adopt the thief-taker's rule, with Sir Joseph Banks, to judge of people by their looks.

The fact is, I made no such assertion or allegations as he alleges, and whether the charges are of his own inventions or from misapprehension of his partner is for themselves to decide.

His long intimacy with Mr. Charles Tyler was known to me for the first time from the publication in question: their late intimacy seems to be well understood I rough the town, and the cause of coupling them together, as I have understood from many of our friends, in unbecomingly and apprehending names. Regarding their connection whether correct or incorrectly formed, is not for me to decide. My partner, Mr.
Fitzhugh, a gentleman, a true-born looking youth in whom I was favorably impressed until yesterday, I had repeatedly spoken jocosely to him, came to the Franklin Bank, where I sat at the fire, exceedingly polite and unobtrusively in my cloak, and that he was my next. In passing the bank, as I had intended, I found myself much exhausted to reach my own house, at less than one hundred yards distance, without an exertion which I treaded to attempt.

I had recovered a little when Mr. Fitzhugh came in, and I spoke to him as usual, observing I was unwell. He commenced a catalogue of assertions (as inventions of mine), to the effect as reiterated in the publication of the hon. Mr. Henderson. At the first, I absolutely thought the stripping was fun, or a species of rally, a liberty I frequently taken with him for shaving. I was then taken to bank, and once in my private was pleased with the ingenui-tousness of his reply, to the effect, that he was not disposed to humiliate at the business, and that he would gladly resign it for some other mode of living; and from his language and manner I was satisfied that he was desirous to quit the office in our pursuits. With these impressions I urged him to go on, observing the broker's business was then common, and that something would probably offer more to his taste and inclination at an early date.

After assuring Mr. Fitzhugh calmly, that I had not the most distant knowledge in the things he alleged, I advised him to enquire through the town, and he would, or might hear all that I had heard on the subject—that I did not choose to enter the lists to find and prove one way or the other.
He insisted that I had spoken disrespectfully of his partner, and that he was determined to defend his character—to which I replied, I had no objection, and that it might be a burden beyond his power to support.

He ret still more clamorous. I got up from my seat to push him out of the bank, when he informed me, he was engaged in exchanging money, and I hobbled back to resume my seat; when he became more assured than at first, exclaiming all that I have at any date experienced in the course of my life—in a hectoring tone, that my age protected me from punishment—with the most opprobrious epithets, concluding that I was an infamous old scoundrel, and took warrant for the exact words in every particular—I am certain as to the substance being fairly and correctly represented.

...for evacuating the French territory, was received at Aix-la-Chapelle, on the 17th of Oct.

The Emperor of Russia and King of Prussia, were at Valenciennes on the 21st Oct. Lord Wellington, was the next day to give a splendid fete to the Sovereigns, and on the following day, a grand review of the troops; when immediately after the evacuation was to follow. The route of all the troops has been traced.

The Emperor of Russia, King of Prussia, together with many illustrious personages of civil and military distinction, were expected at Paris on the 26th Oct.

The Bank of England had not resumed specie payments; but it was said, they were preparing for that measure, and would commence with the issue of silver.

On the 30th Oct. fifty sail of vessels arrived at Dover, from Calais, having on board a large body of British troops, of the army of observation in France. After landing the men, the vessels immediately returned to Calais.

The Queen of England still lingers on her bed of sickness; and suffers great pain and restlessness.

Sir Humphrey Davy has been raised to the dignity of Baronet.

Died at Paris, M. Bertrand de Molleville, Minister of Marine under Louis XVI. aged 59 years.

The matters, not in dispute exactly, but uncertainty, and which were left for arrangement between this country and America, at the conclusion of the late war, are said to have been, the greater number of them, happily settled by the commissioners appointed for that purpose on our part, and Gallatin on the other, before that gentleman quitted England. The boundary, which was left unsettled in the treaty at the end of the revolutionary war, is now separately fixed. This is true, is a great point. The right of fishing, and drying fish, on the coast of Newfoundland, is early defined; and the terms of intercourse between our West India Islands, and the vessels of the United States are defined and agreed on. These also are matters of considerable weight; but the latest difficulty remains behind, and it is stated for this reason, that it is the greatest, that it so remains:—the right of vision, and the power of apprehending the men of each country, when found on the ships of the other, is unsettled.

Notification.

WHEREAS John Thomas Ricketts stated in the Franklin Bank, this day, that I was concerned in trade, or in business, with Mr. Charles Tyler, with the obvious view of injuring my character from the cloud that at present dwells over Mr. Tyler, who has long been my intimate acquaintance—I hereby declare the statement made by Mr. Ricketts to be false. And further, as he has stated Ricketts did also state in the Franklin Bank, in the presence of the teller, that Charles Tyler drew a bill on Alexander Henderson for seventy dollars, in favor of R. S. Blacklock, which was refused, and afterwards paid—I more-over declare that that assertion is also false, as to the payment of said draft. From these misrepresentations of Mr. Ricketts, (which is using too mild a term) I feel forced, contrary to my habits or inclination, to make public that the said Charles Tyler's note, to a certain amount, being in the hands of Henderson & Fitzhugh under protest, I am one of his creditors, although I have not blabbed the circumstance above the streets, knowing enough of mankind to be aware of the truth of one of Rochefoucault's maxims, that "in the adversity of our best friends we always find something that doth not displease us."

The unprovoked assault of Mr. Ricketts on my partner, Mr. Fitzhugh, in the Franklin Bank, will be left, it is to be presumed, to the decision of a jury.

Mr. Snowden:

WILL you be so obliging to insert the following twice or thrice in your Gazette, in reply to the notification of the honorable Alexander Henderson, Esquire. It is not common with me to name or talk of such well known characters, except when at a loss for conversation, and his name accidentally introduced by others with a species of eulogium on his conduct and works.

That gentleman is too well known to suffer in character, even had the charges been made by me which he alleges—and I am not disposed to adopt the thief-taker's rule, with Sir Joseph Banks, to judge of people by their looks.

The fact is, I made no such assertion or assertions as he alleges, and whether the charges are of his own inventions or from suggestion of his partner is for themselves to decide.

The long intimacy with Mr. Charles Tyler was known to me for the first time from the publication in question; their late intimacy seems to be well understood if rough the law, and the cause of coupling them together, as I have understood from many of our citizens, in animadversions and apprehensions. Regarding their connection, whether correctly or incorrectly formed, is not for me to decide. My partner, Mr. Fitzhugh, a gentleman, a man of good looking youth (in whom I was formerly impressed until yesterday) I had repeated spoken jocosely to him, came to the Franklin Bank, where I sat at the time, exceedingly polite and unwell, wrapped up in my cloak, and that looked round my neck. In passing the bank, as I had intended, I found myself much embarrassed to call my own house, at which I had received a letter when Mr. Fitzhugh came in, and I spoke to him as usual, observing I was unwell. He commenced a catalogue of assertions (as inventions of mine), to the effect as is related in the publication of the hon. Mr. Henderson. At the first, I absolutely thought the stripping was a species of railway, a liberty I frequently taken with him for shaving notes from bank to bank, and once in particular was pleased with the ingeniousness of his reply, to effect, that he was not pleased himself of the business, and that he would gladly resign it for some other mode of living; and from his language and manner I was satisfied that he was desirous to get engaged in other pursuits. With these impressions I urged him to go on, observing the broker's business was then common, and that something would probably offer more to his taste and inclination at an early date.

After assuring Mr. Fitzhugh calmly, that I had not the most distant knowledge in the things he alleged, I advised him to enquire through the town, and he would, or might hear all that I had heard on the subject—that I did not choose to enter the lists to find and prove one way or the other. He intimated that I had spoken disrespectfully of his partner, and that he was determined to defend his character—to which I replied, I had no objection, and that it might be a burden beyond his power to support.

He got still more clamorous. I got up from my seat to push him out of the bank, when he informed me he was engaged in exchanging money, and I loobingly asked to resume my seat; when he became more abusive than at first, exceeding all that I have at any date experienced in the course of my life—in a hectoring tone, that my age protected me from punishment—with the most opprobrious epithets, concluding that I was an infamous old scoundrel, and I took the liberty to break his head. I cannot vouch for the exact words in every particular—I am certain as to the substance being fairly and correctly represented.

THE partnership of Doctors Thornton & Brown having been dissolved by the death of the senior partner, the survivor deems it respectful to the friends of the late firm to solicit a continuance of their patronage.

To the surgical department of his profession he has for several years devoted considerable attention, and flatters himself that his assiduity has enabled him to render the same services to surgical patients which they have been accustomed to receive from his late partner.

Of the medical department, which has been almost entirely allotted to himself, he deems it unnecessary to say more than that he will be happy to receive the recommendations of his friends as heretofore, and in endeavor to justify their confidence by all the means in his power. He continues to occupy his former office in the front room of Doctor Thornton's late dwelling house, on King street. His own dwelling house is on E. 4th street, between Prince and Duke streets.

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria. It is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Potobock creeks, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six and a half acres of water, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided into lots. This estate is level and beautifully situated. It is fertile, and remarkably healthy. It is also well watered, and is equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania. It has been used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were it to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles, on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole; it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary out-house; three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both around and on the river, two acres of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (all or might) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abounded with wild fowl, particularly canvas backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensils and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the River, will be taken in payment. Letters must be addressed to me at Potobock Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

Valuable Property for Sale.

THE subscriber is desirous of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county, Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of General Thompson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 60 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, and spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence. The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables. There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutritious as the best timothy or clover. With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep, waggon, cart, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, or which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow—it would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, Esq.

To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, Esq.
